

MUSIC

Program of Study	The University of Maine offers graduate study leading to the Master of Music degree in Conducting, Music Education, and Performance and Collaborative Piano. The MM degree is a 30-credit program. The MM in Conducting and Music Education can be earned in four consecutive summers, or during any four consecutive summer and/or academic terms. For students wishing to pursue the MM degree in Performance and Collaborative Piano, applied study is only offered during the fall and spring terms.
Financial Aid	The School of Performing Arts, Division of Music has several graduate teaching assistantships. The awarding of a GTA is competitive and is based upon departmental need and applicant strength.
Research Facilities	The University of Maine School of Performing Arts has state of the art recording facilities and a MIDI lab. The combination of the Class of 1944 Hall, Hauck Auditorium Memorial Union, and the Collins Center for the Arts are comprehensive performing venues for music and music theater. In addition, there are large ensemble rehearsal rooms, practice rooms, and state of the art classrooms available to undergraduate and graduate students. The Raymond Fogler Library houses the Listening Center as well as books, periodicals, and musical scores for study.
Students	Graduate students in Music at the UM School of Performing Arts are drawn from around the world. The attractions of a world-class performing faculty, an excellent research university, and the excellent facilities for music study have contributed to the growing student enrollments.
Applying	Students who possess an undergraduate degree in some field of music make up the graduate student population at the UM School of Performing Arts. All degree concentrations are fully accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music and thereby the core curriculum for each concentration meets all NASM requirements for the Master of Music degree.
